What is the function of receptor proteins?

A They allow water-soluble substances to move across the membrane.
B They help cells in a tissue stay connected to one another.
C They have sites where substances can bind.
D They act like molecular fingerprints that identify a cell.

Receptor proteins are binding sites for hormones and other extracellular substances that can trigger alteration in cell activities.

Answer C.

Starr’C’04’25  2002-10-23